DONORA OFFICERS ARREST MAN ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

Said to Have Lured Girl from Home of Sister in Fayette County

NOW IN JAIL TO AWAIT TRIAL

Tony Millo, aged 26 a Greek, who says he is a painter by occupation, and that his home is in Uniontown, was taken to the county jail on Thursday to be held for court on a charge of pandering. The accusations against the defendant were made by Constable C. E. Titus, of Donora, and he was held for court at a hearing before Justice G. W. Boyd on Wednesday evening.

Millo was arrested by the Donora police on Monday evening in company with a girl who said her name was Nicnolls, and that her home was at Republic, Fayette county. The pair had been under surveillance by the Donora police all day and the arrest came after enough evidence had been secured by the police to justify them in holding the pair.

The story told by the little girl to the Donora authorities was pitiful in the extreme. She says she is from Alabama, but came north a few months ago to visit with her sister at Republic. While on a trip to Uniontown she called at the shoe shine parlor of Millo to have her shoes shined. There she met Tony and he became very friendly and later called at her home.

On Sunday last Tony, she alleges, came to her and told her he knew of a good home where she could get employment as a domestic at Webster, opposite Donora. She agreed to come down with him and on Sunday afternoon arrived in Charleroi. They remained here Sunday night and on Monday went to Donora, where Tony secured a room. She alleges that Tony brought in several other Greeks to see her, to which she objected to being kept in the house, when Tony offered to do her bodily harm. Later in the day Tony gave her one dollar and she went to a restaurant to get something to eat.

Coming out of the restaurant she met a Donora huckster whom she knew at Republic, and walked with him to the upper part of town. She remained away for some time, when Tony becoming incensed followed her, and an altercation took place between him and the huckster. Officers who had been shadowing the pair were soon on the scene and all parties were arrested. The Donora man was released on the payment of a fine, while Millo taken before Burgess Cox was fined $30 and costs for disorderly conduct. Constable Titus then took charge of the case and placed Millo under arrest on a more serious charge, which resulted in the prisoner being placed in jail for trial at next term of criminal court. The girl will be held as an important witness.

BANKS OF COUNTY TO COLLECT TAXES

County Treasurer Robert G. Lutton has arranged with the various banks of the county to collect the state and county taxes this year. The tax books for the various districts have been sent to designated banks, and they will be prepared to accept payment for these taxes when offered. For Charleroi, North Charleroi, Twilight, Fallowfield, Speers and Dunlevy the Bank of Charleroi has been designated to do the collecting.

LOCAL FIRM WILL BUILD SCHOOL HOUSE

Ground has been broken for Bentleyville's new modern brick school building of 21 rooms, contract for which has been awarded to the Charleroi Lumber company of Charleroi. It's bid was $82,500.

The new building will be located on the western end of Washington street and will occupy a plot of ground equal in size to a city block. Of pleasing design, it will be the most modern school structure in the county, plans calling for a gymnasium and auditorium in the basement.

Interior finish for the building, which is to be ready for occupancy by November 1, 1921, will be temporary. Money available at the present time was not sufficient to have it finished in the manner desired.

The lowest bid received for a building of such proportions was $143,000. Confronted by this situation the board decided it would be better policy to have a structure of the size desired erected and finish the interior temporarily, with the permanent finishing to be done at a time when prices would be more reasonable.

A total of 26 lots were purchased by the board on which to build the new school. Ten of these had to be condemned, the owners refusing to accept the price offered by the directors.

Bentleyville had an enrollment in the grades and high chool during the last year of approximately 1,100 pupils. Many of these were from adjoining townships and it is expected the number, especially in the high school will be increased when the new building is ready for occupancy.

FINE PROGRAM FOR MISSION MEETING

"That the church was planning for aggressive mission work," was maintained at the missionary society meeting of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, Thursday afternoon. The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Ira L. Nickeson, who chose as her subject "The Love of God." The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. McKay, the president of the society, and the study topic was "Mormonism." The leader, Mrs. Clifford Robertson, introduced Mrs. McGuire of Speers, who gave incidents out of her own experience, telling many touching stories of her trip at the camps of soldiers during the war. Mrs. George South gave a reading from the writings of Mrs. Lulu Loveland Shepherd. Owing to her absence Mrs. Tweed's paper was presented by Mrs. Vivia Stewart.

Special music was furnished by Mrs. I. V. Kinder accompanied by Miss Myrtle Anderson. Flowers were arranged to good effect around the front of the room and the window flower display was very pleasing. The hostesses were Mrs. Tayman, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Dougherty, Mrs. Williams and Miss Myrtle Anderson.

ISABELLE E. DORBRITZ

Isabelle Euphemia Dorbritz, aged 26 years, died suddenly Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Maude Dorbritz, 383 East Beau street, Washington, Pa. News of her death reached Charleroi early in the afternoon, and the announcement saddened many hearts among the friends of this most estimable young lady. She had been in failing health for some time, having suffered a nervous breakdown, a few months ago which affected her heart. Recently, however, she had been feeling much better, and her death comes as a great shock to her friends. To Charleroi friends who called to see her Wednesday evening, she said she was feeling somewhat improved, although they realized at the time that she was quite ill.

She was the daughter of the late Otto Dorbritz, and Mrs. Maude Dorbritz, and was born in Charleroi and spent most of her life in this city. She had been a resident of Washington since last November, when her mother moved to that place.

Miss Dorbritz was graduated from the Charleroi High school with the class of 1912, and following her graduation took up the steady of music, becoming one of the most popular vocalists of this community. She was a member of the First Christian church, and for many months a member of the choir. She was also a member of the Monday Musical Club and the Gothic Literary Society. For some years she was employed in the accounting department of the Mail Publishing Company, but was compelled to relinquish her duties here in May, 1920, when she went to a rest and recuperation camp in McKean county, near Bradford, where she spent all last summer and the greater portion of the fall in an endeavor to recover her health. Her stay there seemed to benefit her, and she came back in November to her new home in Washington, of which city she had been a resident since that time. To friends who made numerous inquiries she always had a hopeful message that ultimately she would be restored to health, but her expectations were never realized.

Isabelle, as she was familarly known to her friends, was one of the most popular young women of Charleroi, and because of her musical talent and winsome manner had a large circle of friends, who learned of her death with sincere regret.

She is survived by her mother and one brother Ernest, both of Washington, her father, Otto Dorbritz, having died in the fall of 1918.

Short funeral services will be held at her late home in Washington Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, standard time. The body will then be brought to Charleroi and services held in the First Christian church at 2 o'clock, fast time. Interment will take place later in Monongahela cemetery.

FIRST SLACKER LIST HAS BEEN RECEIVED

The first "slacker" list for Division No. 5, Washington county, has been received from Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, commanding Fort Howard, Maryland, and will likely be posted in the corridors of the post office within a few days. The list contains ninety-nine names, most of them of men who gave Donora as their place of residence when they were required to enroll for service in 1917. It is possible that a number of these men saw service in some departments of the army or the navy, but have neglected to notify the authorities at Washington of this fact. The government took great pains to make a correct list of those who escaped service during the war, and any of those whose names appear on the list are classed as deserters and civil authorities are allowed $50 for delivering them to the nearest military post.

In the list received at the Charleroi postoffice there are the names of 58 men who claimed Donora as a place of residence, eighteen from Monongahela and thirteen from Charleroi. The others are from Fallowfield and Carroll township, and New Eagle borough.

BIG ROAD CONTRACT FOR FAYETTE COUNTY

According to word received in Connellsville from Harrisburg, on Wednesday, the State Highway Department has entered into a contract with Michael Barber, Binghampton, N. Y., for the construction of a stretch of unimproved highway between Connellsville and Farmington, a distance of some 15,886 lineal feet or 26 more than three miles. The stretch begins at Connellsville and runs up the mountain. The Farmington end of ieght and three-quarter miles has been awarded to Reagan and Lynch, contractors, of Uniontown. It calls for the construction of 46,147 feet of broken stone base, vitrified brick.

LILLEY ESTATE DEFENDANT IN SUIT BEFORE COUNTY COURT

I. B. Nixon Sues to Compel Fulfillment of an Alleged Agreement

CLAIM DENIED BY EXECUTORS

The estate of Thomas Lilley late of East Pike Run township, is involved in an important suit before Judge J. A. McIlvaine called Thursday, and now on trial. The plaintiff is I. B. Nixon, corporator of the Lilley Coal & Coke company, and connected with the company up until the time of the death of Thomas Lilley. The defendants are Thomas Elliott and Jacob Elliott, executors of the estate of Thomas Lilley. The amount involved in the litigation is $50,000.

The plaintiff seeks to recover from the estate fifty shares of the capital stock of the Lilley Coal & Coke company, basing his claim on an alleged oral agreement made with Thomas Lilley during the lifetime of the latter. The agreement was to the effect that if Mr. Nixon acted as corporator of the Lilley Coal & Coke company, taking charge of such organiation, and carrying it to the point where it became a going concern, he, Thomas Lilley, would give to him fifty shares of the capital stock of the corporation.

Mr. Nixon states he carried out his part of the agreement, which statements are not denied by the defendants, but the agreement between Thomas Lilley and Mr. Nixon is now in dispute. The defense denies that such an oral agreement existed. They aver that Mr. Nixon was simply acting as trustee for Jacob Elliott, a minor, who held fifty shares of stock of the company. It is averred that Mr. Nixon has been fully paid for all services rendered in connection with the incorporation of the company and other services rendered to make the company a going concern.

ARREST RUNAWAYS AT CARNIVAL GROUNDS

Two young girls, aged about 17 years, were picked up Tuesday evening at the carnival grounds, New Eagle. It was alleged they had succumbed to the lure of the bright lights of the show and had left their homes near Fayete City to become actresses. The parents communicated with the police at Monongahela and their arrest followed. The girls spent the night in the detention rooms at the city hall in Monongahela and on Wednesday morning were turned over to their parents.

NEW COAL HARBOR IS NOW IN USE

The Pittsburg Steel company began using its new coal harbor in the Monongahela, in front of the blast furnaces, Monessen, late Thursday afternoon. A couple of barges of coal had been previously tied up at the elevator, and are now unloaded, but no craft had heretofore been harbored under the ice breakers until Thursday evening. A pump boat has been placed with the consignment and from now on it is anticipated a large upply of fuel will be kept constantly on hand in this new location. The use of the new elevator, the work of which has proved very satisfactory, will take away a great deal of work from the Wireton dock, over which previously all river fuel supplies for the steel company had been hoisted. From now on the new fuel harbor of the steel company is expected to be quite a busy place.

REDUCE PRICE OF NAILS AND WIRE

The American Steel and Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has reduced the price of wire nails 25 cents a keg and larger size wire 25 cents a hundred pounds. It was said this cut had been made because certain other manufacturers have been selling wire at $3 a case compared with a scheduled price of $3.25, and larger size wire at $2.75 a hundred pounds instead of $3. Further reductions are predicted should they sell their products under the schedule adopted a few months ago.

AT LEAST COULD BLAME WIFE

Herbert had a week's vacation from the office for the first time in two years and he was spending it at home.

"Let's do the spring house-cleaning," his wife suggested. "It's using your vacation well, and later on I'd have to do it, anyway, so let's both clean the house."

So his first holiday was spent taking up the carpets. The next day, when he had finished that back-breaking task, she thanked him and gave him a carpet beater to use on the carpets.

And two days later, when that was done satisfactorily, she told him to mop and varnish the floors, whitewash the cellar and polish the furniture.

And on the remaining days of his vacation he was bullied into painting the garden fence, mowing the lawn, digging up and planting again all the plants and flowers and laying a cement walk around the house.

Late in the afternoon of his last day's freedom from the office work the landlord called to see them. "Good afternoon," he began. "I just thought I'd drop in to tell you that the lady across the street, seeing you people cleaning up, smelling soap and new paint and things, coaxed her husband to buy this house. They want to move in next week and will offer you their old house as alternative accommodations. Good day!"

CRY CAME FROM HIS HEART

Thespian Was by No Means Acting When He Gave Such Strong Vent to His Feelings.

Otis Skinner was recounting some of his experiences in "Kismet," not the motion-picture version but the stage play, in which he made such a big success all over the country a few years ago.

"I remember when we played Cincinnati," he said, "that we had trouble with our harem pool. We always tested it before the show and on this night, instead of the slightly heated water pouring through the pipes, it was jets of steam.

"We sent out and got all the ice we could procure, but even so, when the harem girls plunged in, they turned red as beets. A little later, I was called on to throw the grand vizier, Mr. Hamilton Revelle, into the pool.

"We had forgotten to tell him about the temperature, and when he struck the water he let out a yell that we thought would break up the show. But it didn't and you can imagine our surprise next day when the critics complimented Revelle on the spontaneous outcry he made when I threw him to his death."

Havre Port Undertaking.

A large job is about to be undertaken in connection with the deepening of the outer harbor of the French port of Le Havre. The scheme includes erecting and working, on both north and south sides of the outer harbor, transshipping berths, wharves, mooring buoys, raised earthworks, roadways, a dock for petroleum, gasoline and other inflammable hydrocarbides, a complete plant comprising both quayside and floating equipment for handling general goods, coal, heavy oils, petroleum, and gasoline, together with storage sheds, tanks and machinery; likewise, rails running along the quays and joining with the state railway. It appears very much as though the French were going to make a strong bid for the world's shipping, judging by this and other extensive improvements in French ports.—Scientific American.

Who Controls Back of Seat?

"Say, take your coat off of my new hat!"

"My coat isn't on your hat. And if it is, you can just take your hat away. My coat's going to stay where it is!"

"You can put your coat on your lap. I'll call the usher."

That's the way the argument began between the two women in the movie theatre. The woman in front had dropped her coat over the back of her seat. The woman in back objected, because she had "parked" her new spring hat there.

But the question, who owns the back of the seat—the person who sits in the seat or the one behind—was left unsettled, because the owner of the coat moved to another seat.—New York Sun.

Sea May Reclaim Wayward Boys.

Believing that the lure of the sea might prove the winning appeal to boys who resist the conventional schooling of shore life, a Baltimore shipping expert proposes the establishment of a training ship at that port. Not only would such a school ship serve as a co-operative unit in the educational system of the city and state, but it would give additional marine training calculated to yield a supply of American sailors for the merchant vessels of the nation.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Wealth in Hawaii.

The territory of Hawaii will produce enough motor fuel for its own needs within two years. They would also be able to supply the requirements of the army and navy forces there, should their bases of supply be cut off. Commercial manufacture of fuel alcohol from sugar molasses has been made practicable on a large scale on the island of Maui.

GAVE HIM DRASTIC LESSON

New York Business Man Adopted Stern Methods in Dealing With Wayward Young Son.

A new method of correcting the youth who had started to go astray was put into effect one afternoon by a big business man. He had caught his fifteen-year-old son pilfering articles from the home, and the boy had also been in trouble in the private school he was attending.

The father confided with a personal friend, a high official of the police department.

"Bring your son down to my office in headquarters at five o'clock this afternoon and when I get through with him I don't think he will trouble you again," said the policeman.

At five o'clock father and son were on hand. They were then taken to the rogues' gallery, finger print and cell rooms, where the boy was told what would befall him eventually if he did not mend his ways. After ten minutes in a cell and a lecture before half a dozen detectives who were about, the boy was taken home, with the parting information from the police and his father that the next time he did anything wrong he would land down in Center street, to go through all the things that befall criminals, and that it would be in earnest the next time.

The boy indicated he was cured.—New York Sun.

ON BORDER LINE OF SANITY

Danger Signals Which, if Heeded in Time, May Save the Afflicted From Insane Asylum.

The history of most cases of insanity can be traced back through a progressive series of symptoms to an early day when the patient was looked upon as normal except for some trifling peculiarity. In the Indianapolis Medical Journal, Dr. Max A. Bahr describes some of the peculiarities which in certain temperaments may combine with a train of circumstances to bring their possessor if not to the insane asylum at least to the borderland of insanity.

Self-depreciation, conceit, self-pity, exaggerated tendency to shun society, selfishness, suspiciousness and jealousy, exaggerated conscientiousness and scrupulousness, which in their normal development are virtues but in their exaggerated form make of their possessor an unsocial person are all characteristics of this kind. Moodiness and irritability, touchiness and oversensitiveness also fall into this class.

Doctor Bahr considers that if recognized early enough all of these can be prevented from progressing to insanity. But early treatment is necessary.

Heavy Cost of Sickness.

Sickness causes an annual loss of more than $500,000 to New York state factory workers, investigation undertaken during the last half of 1919 by the Associated Industries of New York shows. More than 140 manufacturers and about 77,000 workers were included.

Cases of sickness lasting from three days to six months, numbered 8,761 for one-half year, amounting to an average of 114 per thousand employees, or a monthly average of 19 per thousand. Only 10 per cent of the cases were of more than three weeks' duration; 60 per cent lasted from three to six days. Nearly 50 per cent of the total number of days lost was involved in cases lasting more than fourteen days, and 15 per cent more than two months.

The total loss of working time was 35,665 days, and the loss of wages $321,875. The average loss was approximately ten days' time and $36.73.

Stamp Collections and History.

Glimpses into unfamiliar bypaths of history may often be obtained by stamp collections, says the London Times. This is true of the series of pictorial postage stamps issued by the government of the Ukraine, some of which bear the portraits of famous Cossack hetmen who are identified with the history of Little Russia. The one-grivni stamp printed in rose carmine bears the likeness of Bogdan Khmelnitzki, the renegade Polish officer who led the Cossack revolt of 1632 and after vain attempts to establish himself as "monarch and autocrat of Rus," finally entered the service of the czar 20 years later.

First Woman on Lunacy Board.

Clarice M. Baright, attorney at law, puts forth the claim that she is the first woman ever appointed to serve as a member of a lunacy commission in New York state, although the distinction in some newspaper articles has been accredited to another. She points out that she has held four such appointments, the first one being made by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky on February 19, 1919, and the latest one by Judge Mulqueen in February of this year.

Robert Bruce's Heart!

During excavations at Melrose abbey carried out by the office of works, there have been unearthed a number of stone coffins, and also a leaden casket, inclosing a heart. The discovery of this casket has aroused speculation as to whether the heart which it contains is that of Robert Bruce, the famous king of Scotland. The casket was found, however, in that part of the abbey grounds where the chapter house stood, in which Bruce's heart is said to have been buried.—London Times.

WOULD MIX LOVE AND LOGIC

Writer's Advice to Woman Desirous of Retaining Husband's Devotion After the Honeymoon.

Years ago a poet wrote of love as being "woman's whole existence." He must have known a lot about the feminine sex. Love and logic are at opposite poles of woman's world; and it is a fact that many a woman has lost a man's love through not allowing a little common sense in courtship and marriage, the mixing of love and logic, as it were.

A girl may be adorable, but if she is forever making her lover appear "silly" in the eyes of the public, she is in danger of losing that man's love. Simply because a woman finds love and one man her whole existence, that is no reason why a man is going to find that true in regard to the woman he loves. There is a difference in the sexes in that respect. God made it so, and no woman need try to alter it. Lovers, married or otherwise, grow restive under restraint, and it is a wise woman who never puts up the "check rein."

One very clever woman whose life runs smoothly and happily after years of married life insisted at the beginning that one night in the week her husband would not be expected to come home until he chose to come. She didn't ask him to drop all the friends he had before he married her. What was the result? He took the night off regularly, for a month, and pretended that he liked it. Then he started coming home on these "off nights." There were never any messages of "being detained at the office." His friends couldn't get him to stay in town, but they would go home with him, being sure of a smile and a warm welcome from his wife.—Philadelphia North American.

TOWN BUILT ON GREAT ROCK

Ancoma, in Mexico, Surely Has Site Such as No Other Place on Earth Can Boast.

To live on top of a mushroom would be a peculiar sensation. If the mushroom were of gigantic proportions and were planted so as to overhang the sea the experience would be very similar to that of living in the town of Ancoma, which is three miles south of the Mesa Escantada, in Mexico, says the Christian Science Monitor. The strange mushroom-like rock on which the town stands is a splendid specimen of fantastic erosion, having overhanging sides nearly 400 feet high. The top of the rock is comparatively level, and is about 70 acres in extent. It is notched with dizzy chasms. The greater portion of it overhangs the sea like an immense mushroom, and the oddest thing is that it should have a town at the top.

Now, this town pertains to a past civilization. It is one of the most perfect specimens of the pre-historic Pueblan architecture. With inconceivable labor this town in the air was built and fortified for the safety of its inhabitants. It was reached by a mere trail of toe-holes up the stem of the mushroom. The age of the town is not known, but it was already old in 1540, when the first explorers visited it.

Hesitate to Attack Mankind.

Dr. Rodi of the Italian Somaliland gives an account of lion and leopard bites in the Giornale di Medicina Militare. Many deaths occur annually—almost entirely among the indigenous—in which either one of the felidae or the crocodile is accused. There is a notable difference between the wounds inflicted by the felidae and the reptile in question, for the former, which attack living victims only, inflict clean wounds. The crocodile, on the contrary, secretes its carcasses until they become decomposed.

In Benadir—the Italian Somaliland—the lion does not attack mankind by choice, preferring cattle and goats; but nevertheless the beast is greatly feared by the natives, who use reason in dealing with the leopard and crocodile, but are thrown into panic by the larger cat.

Memory and Instinct.

In the higher animals, we can see evidences of the possession of some faculty similar to human memory, which is made use of particularly by animal trainers. It is obvious that instinct alone would not enable these animals to perform such feats. While we cannot investigate the animal mind as we do the human mind, we can judge of its processes by the outward signs and these point to the possession of what we may call animal memory. Some students of the subject deny that animals have imagination and assert that memory is only associative—something the animal sees, smells or hears, recalling a group of facts connected with it, and it being impossible for it to recall this group without some concrete suggestion.

Help! Help!

"Good advertising," says a man well up in that line, "benefits any form of business. The right sort of advertising gives you a friendly feeling toward a firm. It makes you believe that it will be both pleasant and profitable to deal with the advertiser. A certain grocer once inserted in the newspapers an advertisement that had this merit. It ran:

"'Twins are come to me for the third time. This time a boy and a girl. I beseech my friends to support me stoutly.'"

STATESMAN KNEW ALL RIGHT

Didn't Need Lawyer to Tell Him That the Motto of the State Was in Latin.

A Chicago lawyer, a man of great ability and wide learning, visited, during a trip to the Southwest, the capital of one state, where he was given a dinner at the expense of the state.

The feast was an abundant one, and all the great men from miles around were invited to it, to honor the great lawyer. He had the governor on one side of him at the table and the lieutenant governor on the other side. As the party sat down the menu cards had already been laid beside their plates. These cards were very fine. They cost $25 each, and they bore at their heads the state coat of arms, upon which was engraved a motto in Latin.

As the lawyer sat down he took up this card and, looking at the motto, said to the man at his left, "Very good, indeed, and very appropriate."

"What's good?" asked the lieutenant governor.

"I refer to these words," said the lawyer, as he pointed to the motto.

"Yes," replied the lieutenant governor, with a knowing look, "them words is Latin."

WATCHED EFFECTS OF STORM

How Great Naturalist Took Observations During Severe Weather in the Shasta Country.

Day after day the storm continued, piling snow on snow in weariless abundance. There were short periods of quiet, when the sun would seem to look eagerly down through the rents in the clouds, as if to know how the work was advancing. During these calm intervals I replenished my fire—sometimes without leaving the nest, for fire and woodpile were so near this could easily be done—or busied myself with my notebook, watching the gestures of the trees in taking the snow, examining separate crystals under a lens, and learning the methods of their deposition as an enduring fountain for the streams. Several times when the storm ceased for a few minutes, a Douglass squirrel came frisking from the foot of a clump of dwarf pines, moving in sudden interrupted spurts over the glossy snow; then without any apparent guidance he would dig rapidly into the drift where he buried some grains of barley that the horses had left. The Douglass does not strictly belong to these upper woods, and I was surprised to find him out in such weather. —John Muir.

Eel-Like Water Dog.

The hellbender is a large, ugly looking but harmless salamander, found in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and southward. The hellbender is known as an alligator and water dog. Two species inhabit the central parts of the United States, of which the more common and widespread is the Necturus maculatus. It reaches the length of one foot to twenty inches, is smooth, slimy and brown blotched, with the tufted gills dark red. These creatures remain mostly among weeds or rocks at the bottom of the water during the daytime, but at night, they move about, often with quick eel-like motions, in search of crawfish, worms, insects, frogs and it readily takes the bait off the fisherman's hook. It is tenacious of life and can live for hours out of water. They spawn during the months of April and May. The spawn much resembles that of frogs, but is lighter in color.

Land Words at Sea.

Cat is not an animal; it is a tackle used to hoist the anchor. Chains are not chains, but plates of iron bolted through a ship's side, to which the rigging supporting the masts is fastened.

Dog watches are not periods of time consumed in watching dogs, but they are half watches of two hours each from 4 to 6 and 6 to 8 p. m.

Draught is not a drink of water, but the depth of water in which a vessel is required to float.

Duck is not a thing that swims and quacks, but a light canvas used for small sails.

Eye is not an organ of sight; it is a circular part of a shroud or stay that is looped over a mast.—Nation's Business.

Not Seen.

A tight-fisted old gentleman, who recently recovered from a severe attack of fever, called up his physician on the phone and made complaint with reference to the total of the bill rendered by him on this occasion.

"See here!" shouted the old gentleman, "you have me charged for five weeks' calls. I will pay for four weeks only."

"But, my dear sir," expostulated the doctor, "I visited you each day for five weeks."

"Perhaps you did, I don't know," retorted the tight one, "but for one week I was delirious, and I didn't see you come in."

The Eternal Feminine.

"It is really time you took an interest in serious things," said the husband. "You think of nothing but clothes. Try to read a little history. I've brought you a story about William Tell and the Swiss, and how Gessler put up the hat for them to salute, and—"

"How was it trimmed?" asked the eternal feminine.

REMAINS IN HER MEMORY

How North Star Brings Up Vision of Happy Childhood to the Mind of Writer.

One of my own most perfect childhood memories concerns my visits to my grandmother, when she invited me to stay for supper, and my grandfather walked home with me after dark. All along the way, he used to point out our two shadows on the pavement, as we passed the street lights one by one.

We watched the way the shadows were very short directly below the lamp, and how they lengthened until they were just our height—his more than twice as tall as mine—and how they finally grew so long that their tops were almost out of sight. The object was to find the point where the shadows were exactly as tall as ourselves. When we came to the darkest part of the street, where our shadows were lost in the hedges, we used to stop and find the North star over a pointed tree near my own home.

That was always the way we made the journey from his home to mine, until he thought that I was too old to care to have him show me stars and shadows any more. But for me, as long as I live, the North star will shine over that particular tree. And I shall always keep the memory of that funny little shadow that used to be mine, clear cut with the light behind it—and beside it, hand in hand with it, that dear characteristic shadow that never falls on any road in the world.—Frances Lester Warner in the Atlantic Monthly.

BELL MADE TOO MUCH NOISE

Invention of the Telephone Evidently Was Not by Any Means a Quiet Affair.

The landlady couldn't stand it any longer, and the boarders threatened to leave unless the racket stopped.

Alexander Graham Bell was the cause of the trouble. He had rigged up a contraption in his bedroom and a duplicate in the room of his accomplice, Thomas A. Watson. A wire went out of the window and connected the two machines.

These two machines, according to young Bell, were first models of a revolutionary invention, the telephone.

"I don't care what it is," said the landlady, "but if you two boys don't stop yelling your heads off, into those boxes, you'll have to pack your trunks and get out."

This episode of the angry landlady happened years ago in a cheap lodging house in Boston.

The Western Union Telegraph company offered Bell $100,000 for all his patents. Bell, with vision, realized that he had a fortune within grasp and rejected the offer. He and Watson went around the country, delivering lectures, and with the proceeds financed themselves.

Today there is a telephone to every nine Americans and more than 24,000,000 miles of wire in the Bell telephone lines.

Old Estates in America.

The commonest real estate phenomenon in England is the rarest one in America; namely, long-handed-down holdings still belonging to descendants of the ancient owners.

A certain William Douglas, born (where else than) in Scotland, came to this country in 1625 and settled near New London, Connecticut, where he built a house. The homestead has been in the hands of his offspring ever since. What is believed to be the first English settlement within the present boundaries of New York state, Gardiner's Island, at the eastern end of Long Island sound, is still owned by descendants of the original owner of the island, Lion Gardiner, who purchased it in 1639 from the Indians. The present home of the Gardiners was built in 1774 and has been exteriorly little altered since.

Toughest American Wood.

The toughest American wood is that of the Osage orange, which is not an orange at all, but belongs to the nettle family. This has been proved by a series of tests made by the United States Forest Service, but the Indians knew it before the coming of the white man, and it was known to them as the bow tree, because they used it for making their finest bows. Some idea of its strength may be had from the report made not long ago by the forest service, which shows that a block thirty inches long and two inches in cross-section when bent breaks under a stress of 13,000 pounds, its nearest rival being a variety of the hickory called monkey-nut. When bent by the impact of a 100-pound hammer, it stands a stress of 15,520.

Our Dearest Friends.

We spend a great deal of our time in learning what literature is good, and a great deal more in attuning our minds to its reception, rightly convinced that, by the training of our intellectual faculties, we are unlocking one of the doors through which sweetness and light may enter. We are fond of reading, too, and have always maintained with Macaulay that we would rather be a poor man with books than a great king without, though luckily for our resolution, and perhaps for his, such a choice has never yet been offered. Books, we say, are our dearest friends, and so, with true friendly acuteness, we are prompt to discover their faults, and take great credit in our ingenuity.—Agnes Repplier.

SWAMP LAND MADE VALUABLE

How Mosquito-Breeding Plague Spot Was Turned Into Twenty Acres of Good Ground.

A mosquito-breeding swamp is not only a source of neighborhood discomfort and danger but also an economic liability. Often it may be converted into a valuable asset by inexpensive draining.

The United States public health service tells an illustrative case in Georgia, where, near the town of Milan, an experimental operation was recently performed upon a 20-acre swamp. It was a mucky place, nearly all of it under water, with tree stumps plentifully scattered.

The operation consisted of ditching with dynamite; a trench 1,500 feet long being blown with sticks of the explosive placed in holes two feet deep at intervals averaging one foot. Extra charges were used for stumps.

The resulting ditch averaged a width of 7½ feet at the top and a depth of 3½ feet. Total cost, including labor and 1,000 pounds of dynamite, was $270. When the job was finished there was a freely running stream through the ditch.

By this simple and rapid means the swamp was transformed into 20 acres of good land.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

NOT MUCH OF A DISGUISE

School Ma'am Not Likely to Pose as a Widow Next Time She Takes a Vacation.

A rather successful Hoosier school ma'am has for one of her ambitions never to look her profession so that people can guess it when they see her. So whenever she goes on a vacation she poses as a stenographer a clerk or a member of some other profession than her own. When she left at Easter time she said that this time she "was going to be a widow for a week."

She succeeded in carrying off her pose successfully, too, until the day before she started home. Then on that day she overheard the colored elevator boy talking to a man she had met. "So she am a widow?" he said.

"Yes," the man nodded his head.

"I ain't surprised," the boy retorted with conviction. "I said that the day she come. I say that woman either a widow or a school teacher. Both of 'em always have such a pert, 'I have-bossed-the-world' way."

"Picnic."

Many of us seem to have an idea that a "picnic" is a purely American institution. Perhaps it is in the sense of an outdoor party where all participants contribute to the entertainment, the serving of the meal, and at times the supplies which constitute it.

But the word is of French origin. "Pique-nique" is the French term for an informal party, mostly indoors, at which each participant makes a contribution to the table.

A French paper published in 1879 contains a sentence which shows clearly how different a "pique-nique" is from a "picnic," and how much more formality is required to comply with its rules:

"Pique-nique of Saint Henry—the list of subscribers at 15 francs a head will be closed at four o'clock. Evening dress and white ties are de rigueur. Guests will sit down to table at eight o'clock."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Going Fishing."

Now's the time for everyone with the bug to go fishin'. The game hog goes for fish—the real sport goes for fishing. The one chap would clean the streams and pickle the product for personal use if he could. The other would stock the streams with the gamiest fish to increase the joys of fishing.

There is more than one way of showing you have been fishing. The increased health, vigor and tan give evidence of the out of doors. Fishin' for fishin' puts pep into your thinking and punch into your performance. Fish in the pan and the odor of frying calling loud enough to call the cat from the barn or your friend from the next block is the evidence of fishing.—Grit.

Difference of opinion over the reliability and strength of the all-metal airplane has caused the British government to purchase one for the purpose of testing it to destruction. The machine selected is built of duralumin, supposedly as strong as steel and very light. Engineers will put weights to parts of the wings and fuselage where they know there is great strain in flight, and will add to the weight until the portion they are testing collapses. By this method they can reckon to a nicety the resisting power of the metal frame.

Where She Drew the Line.

A Milwaukee woman who died at one hundred and eighteen smoked a pipe, cigars and cigarettes. But so far as we can learn she never shimmied, toddled, covered her ears with her hair, shaved off her eyebrows or wore hairnet stockings.—Cleveland Press.

Essentials.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Corntossel, "have you made improvements in the place so's to render it attractive to the summer boarders?"

"All the improvements that are necessary," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I've bought a lot of jazz records and some new needles for the phonograph."

FORDNEY EXTENDS INVITATION

Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee, has hung the latchstring outside for southern producers to pull and enter into the councils of the nation with respect to the tariff. On May 26th a petition circulatetd among members of the House by the Southern Tariff Association was received by the Ways and Means Committee requesting that hides and oils be placed on the dutiable list. This date was fixed for the purpose of ascertaining the status of southern products in the pending general tariff measure and in order that the members of the committee might be properly informed thereon.

Mr. Fordney announced that "the ways and means committee is now engaged in writing the permanent tariff measure and we want the cooperation of the South, as we are anxious to deal fairly with all sections. We would be glad to have Southern representatives enumerate Southern products they desire placed on the dutiable list and we would also like for them to say whether they want a tariff on their products for the purpose of protecting the producer or for raising money for the government. We, of course, take it for granted that every representative who asks for duty on products of his district and section is willing to grant the same relative duty upon the products of all other sections. To assume otherwise would, of course, carry with it a charge of insincerity and selfishness beneath the dignity of an American representative. While we are going to write a protective tariff measure and the Republican party wants to deal fairly and intelligently with the South, we have no desire to levy a duty on a southern product which the southern people want on the free list. We recognize a Congressman as the authorized spokesman of his district and the custodian of the welfare of his people and we shall be glad to hear them define the attitude of their constituents with regard to a tariff on southern products.

It is reported that the circulation of this petition made it decidedly uncomfortable for certain old-time Bourbon Congressmen who have fought protection for many years, but who are coming to realize that the free trade doctrine is no longer popular in the South. If they come out for the Republican doctrine they will be open to the charge of inconsistency; if they continue to oppose it, they will hear from their districts in the next election. Mr. Fordney has put the question up to them fairly and squarely and they must either fish or cut bait.

It is doubtful if any economic organization in the past generation has exercised a more potent influence on Southern Congressmen that the Southern Tariff Association, headed by John Kirby, of Texas. The Association itself is the offspring of the desire of the South to get away from the false doctrine of free trade so general in that section when Cotton was King and manufacture and diversified crops were not so well established. So long as the chief dependence of the South was on the cotton crop and the Hayne doctrine that free trade in textile manufactures from England meant an enlarged market for raw cotton was accepted as uncontrovertible, the South remained wedded to that god. But during the past few years enterprising business men have brought the mills to the South, which is better than sending the South to the mills, and the value of protection to industry has grown to be appreciated, this appreciation enhanced by the fact that vegetable oils have also become an important Southern product, and is paying one if the competition of the Orient is restricted.

It will be amusing to study the replies made by the old South free trade Representatives in Congress to the questions put by Chairman Fordney, and they may be assured that those replies will be given ample publicity throughout the sections which they hope to continue to represent.

HONORS TO THE FLAG

The inquiry made by a citizen of the community, and which appeared in Tuesday's Mail with reference to respect to the flag, has caused some discussion as to the proper courtesy to be shown to our National emblem. Many people offend through ignorance, some through inattention, while but few are maliciously discourteous.

The World War was a great educator along the lines of proper courtesy to be shown to the flag, and veterans of this great conflict, who were rigidly schooled in all forms of etiquet to the flag quickly resent any feature which tends to show disrespect to the banner which stands for the Nation. There are many features of which the civilian is ignorant, and the only way to overcome this lack of knowledge of the proper courtesy to the flag is to teach the rising generation through the schools. It was a marked feature of the exercises on Memorial Day morning that the school children who took part in the singing were the first to observe the proper respect, coming to attention and the boys removing their caps, when the first bars of the National Anthem sounded.

So far as flag etiquet is concerned, all of us should be better informed on the subject, that we pay the proper respect when the occasion requires.

A crook has been known to explain that he "crooked" chiefly because he craved excitement, contending that "when you keep straight life is so awful dull." But the most hardened of crooks seem to shrink from any "excitement" attending their arrest. When Harry Williams, aged 87, a life-long pickpocket, was caught in the act the other day he visibly shrank from anything like a "scene," saying urgently: "Well, you needn't shout and attract a crowd." It was plain that the excitement of being arrested failed of the charm attending the excitement of picking pockets.

BACKSLIDING POLAND

The remarkable spectacle is presented in Upper Silesia of soldiers of Germany and the Allies fighting side by side against Silesian insurgants and Poles. While the leading allied nations are enforcing reparations against Germany in western Europe, they are cooperating with Germany against Poland in central Europe. How much value does Poland place upon her membership in the league of nations?

Mme Curies is reported to be literally worn out by the multitude of her honors of formal "welcomes." With the kindest intentions societies and appreciative groups have taxed her strength day after day until she has had to keep her bed in order to recuperate. Of course the lionized are grateful, but the lionizers get most of the fun in the process.

RULED BY THINGS MATERIAL

Writer Asserts That Americans Are Behind Rest of World in Intellectual Progress.

It is, I think, true to say that the material progress of America has enormously surpassed the intellectual progress, writes St. John Ervine in the Century magazine. That is why a European, visiting the United States, is disconcerted to find men of immense power in business talking like children in an elementary school about literature and art.

It was this absorption in material things which, though it has made American domestic life easily the most comfortable in the world, left America a good deal at the mercy of the old and ravenous diplomats of Europe in the peace conference. Culture, given by contemplation of art and literature, is the power to know and understand human nature and motives. Centuries of familiarity with the garnered beauty and learning of the world have gone to the making of the European statesman, but only a generation or two of intimate knowledge of great businesses and the machinery had gone to the making of the American delegation.

The great expanse of America, the fact that its resources are still undeveloped, and that fortunes seem very easily to be made by men whose wits are both agile and accommodating, make the reappearance of its high general culture difficult. The standards of America are constantly being displaced by the irruption of newly enriched men, who pass from poverty to affluence so rapidly that while they have the means for a life of culture, they have not the mentality for it.

WIND SCATTERED HIS WARES

Toy-Balloon Merchant Might Have Been Excused If He Made a Few Warm Remarks.

A toy-balloon merchant, all but hidden under a fantastic, dancing cluster of brilliant wares was making his way northward in Meridian street, when he met a foe in the form of an April wind. The man emerged from the protection of the Board of Trade building and started on the run across Ohio street, when the coy spring zephyr reached forth and plucked a handful of the varicolored merchandise.

Strange red, green, yellow and blue bubbles, like bits of whimsical clouds, went bounding and sailing eastward along Ohio street, much to the amazement of distressed patients sitting in dentists' chairs before windows in the Hume-Mansur building. Pedestrians gazed aloft and gasped. Then came a scramble, in which for the most part little boys and girls were victorious. Soon the stray balloons were led captive away, while the balloon merchant continued onward along Meridian street, holding converse with himself. It is not recorded what he said.—Indianapolis News.

"Golf Spine" the Latest.

The "golf spine" is the latest of income producers for the doctors, according to Dr. Homer L. Bailey, who was the principal speaker at a meeting of the St. Louis Osteopathic association. It is a result, he said, of putting too much "pep" into the game.

There are two forms of the trouble, the doctor said. One results from swinging too hard at the ball while the player is standing in an upright position.

The other results from a swing while the player is leaning forward. In the first instance there is a dislocation of the vertebrae at the base of the neck and in the other at the small of the back. In the first instance, the player suffers from pains similar to rheumatic pains in the right shoulder and in the second instance the pains are in the back.—Kansas City Star.

Haiti's Forest Wealth.

Large forests of pines are to be found in the mountains in the interior of Haiti, but lack of transportation makes it impossible to utilize this timber even for domestic needs. Large quantities of pine are imported from the United States. A few small sawmills are located in various sections of the island, but these cannot begin to supply the local markets. Dyewoods are plentiful.

WON POPULARITY BY FEAST

How New Hebrides Outcast Chief Contrived to Become the Big Ruler of Vao.

Many of the inhabitants of the island of Vao in the New Hebrides are refugees from the big island of Malekula, who were vanquished in battle and literally driven off the earth by their enemies. Soon after our arrival a powerful savage named Tethlong, one of the Small Numbers people, arrived on Vao with twenty of his men. All the others had been killed and the women and children had been taken captive, Martin Johnson writes in Asia Magazine. The natives of Vao received the newcomers as a welcome addition to their fighting force and Tethlong set about to insure his position among his new neighbors. He invited the entire population to a feast, and at once sent his men to neighboring islands to buy up pigs and chickens for the occasion. The devil-devils—great, hollowed logs, carved roughly to represent a human face, which are erected everywhere in the New Hebrides to guard against evil spirits—were consulted to find a propitious time for the feasting and on the appointed day the celebration began with much shouting and singing and dancing and beating of tomtoms. It lasted for several days. Before it was over, 720 pigs had been slaughtered. The island had never before seen such a feast. As a result of his political strategy, Tethlong, the refugee, became the big chief of Vao, taking precedence over the chiefs already there.

FLYING ABOVE THE CLOUDS

Possible to Experience Every Degree of Fog and Sunshine Within a Few Minutes.

The full majesty of the aerial perspective can only be realized when one is above the clouds and the world is shut off from view. In flying on an overcast day, when heavy banks of cumulous clouds lie at 3000 feet, it is possible to experience within a minute or two every degree of fog and sunshine. When one is passing into the clouds the lower surfaces of which are almost perfectly flat, there is an instantaneous transition from shadow to complete atmospheric opacity, the machine appearing to plunge into a dense fog and proceeding for differing somewhat from it. Looking for the interior of a cloud seems to be drier, the air less saturated with water vapor, than the fogs which are met with at sea or ashore. If the climb is continued a few hundred feet farther, the airplane passes again into clear air, but into air not of such clarity and brightness worthy of Mediterranean skies and not at all to be compared with the sky at sea level.—Ohio State Journal

Preserving Fruit in Transit.

In an attempt to evolve methods of preventing the spoilage of fruits and vegetables by freezing while in transit or storage, the Department of Agriculture is conducting thousands of experiments at the Arlington (Va.) laboratories, to determine at what temperatures these products freeze. The experimental apparatus, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, consists of a large tank in which brine is circulated and thermocouples which possess the peculiar property of generating weak and variable currents of electricity when they are subjected to changes in temperature. These variations are registered by delicate meters. So sensitive are the thermocouples that they will detect a difference of temperature of .0001 degree. In service, a test specimen of fruit and a thermocouple are placed in one of twelve cups in the lid of the brine tank. By watching the specimen and the meter closely the exact temperature at which freezing begins is determined with great accuracy.

People Hard to Reach.

How much remains to be done before we shall have a complete knowledge of the inhabitants of our planet is indicated by the failure of an expedition from the American Museum of Natural History to get into communication with the Naskapi Indians of Labrador, says the Christian Science Monitor. The summer the expedition was undertaken it was supposed that these natives could be reached by way of the west coast of Labrador, but it was found to be impossible. In winter they go to Nitchequon, in the interior, fifty-five days' journey by canoe from Rupert House on East Main river.

Disabled Soldiers Good Students.

In a report made by the dean of the University of Wisconsin, special mention is made of the excellent progress made by the 234 disabled soldiers who are known as federal board students. Owing to their physical condition it was anticipated that they might prove indifferent students, but such has not been the case. In this instance it is said that their progress compared very favorably in every way with that of the regular students.

Mortland Won.

The Rev. R. P. Jones, of Franklin, was talking rather seriously to his four-year-old son, Mortland, Sunday on misbehavior, when the child interrupted him by saying:

"Daddy, you know you make — lose my heart when you talk like that."

The father says the talking stopped.—Indianapolis News.

Possibly.

The man who paid $400 for a special train to take him from Philadelphia to New York must either have a particular grudge against the Quaker city or else must have had money to burn; possibly both.—Boston Transcript.

New Form of Pumice Stone.

A form of pumice stone has been discovered in Japan which can be used in concrete for boat building, making a concrete as strong, but 60 per cent lighter, than the ordinary kind.

Kindling the Fire.

Clean candles cut into small bits and placed in the kindling in the kitchen stove, make an even better method of quickly starting the fire in the morning than using kerosene. And it is just as economical.

The Truth of the Matter.

There is much indignation here lately because people don't behave. We don't want to tell stories out of school, but people never did behave.—Atchison Globe.

Prehistoric Almanac.

In the British museum there is to be seen an almanac which is 1,200 years older than the Christian era; it dates back to the reign of the Egyptian king, Rameses the Great.

Mental.

A Louisville man says the socalled "money tightness" is only a state of mind. That may be, but as a rule when we think we are broke, we are.

An Easy One.

How True.

Joel Tuckins says dreaming is the poetry of prose, but a great deal of poetry is footwork without grace.

Lines to Be Remembered.

It is always right that a man should be able to render a reason for the faith that is in him.—Sydney Smith.

Wit and Wisdom.

Wit and wisdom differ. Wit is upon the surface, true wisdom is in bringing about ends.—Sollom.

ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WERE NO DOCTORS!

The Doctor Was Not Much Needed Until Folks Began to Break Nature's Laws.

Doctors Preach Prevention Is Better Than Cure

Ninety per cent of all disease is preventable, so doctors say. Eat simple food, exercise wisely, sleep sufficiently, and—what is vitally important—make sure of the daily, regular, thorough elimination of body waste, and the chances are nine to one that you will keep well, work efficiently and enjoy life. Bowel elimination of food and tissue waste is all-important. But in case of irregularity, disordered or imperfect action do not make the common mistake of taking harsh, violently acting medicines, with the idea of forcing the bowels to act. Nature believes in mild methods. She responds best to persuasion.

So in selecting a simple remedy to regulate and assure proper bowel action, you should not use harsh or violently acting remedies, no matter how much has been claimed for them. You should choose some well-known time tested, trial proven remedy, that has made its reputation by being used for many years, by all sorts of people, all over the world. Take Beecham's Pills for eample. Beecham's is a household word, has been for many generations. Beecham's Pills is a household remedy, has been for over half a century. People not only take Beecham's but recommend Beecham's to their friends. Their use is handed down from father to son or from mother to daughter, from one generation to another. Did you ever hear any complaint or criticism of Beecham's? Isn't that a pretty powerful endorsement of their worth? Druggists are glad to sell Beecham's.

FRENCH PLAYHOUSE ON BOAT

Actors in Remarkable Theatre Are Said to Find Their Occupation a Pleasant One.

France has a playhouse, built on a barge, which travels from Tours to Strasbourg. It is a gorgeous affair painted in white and silver and called the "bateau-theatre." It wanders along the canals and wherever it stops the French, who have few entertainments, crowd into the Fulminant to see a dramatic representation. It is agreeable life to move leisurely by canal and river, to stop where one pleases, to play to a crowded house in a salle, which is always ready, to give pleasure to a whole community and profit to oneself. The room where the performances take place is spacious enough. It holds five hundred persons, and every one of the fauteuils covered in red velvet in this blue and gold decorated hall is occupied whenever the floating theatre casts anchor in an out-of-the-way town. The actors are their own mariners. There is much work to be done on board any kind of boat, as all who have ever helped to sail a yacht will agree. They all lend a hand. They scrub the decks and they make the preparations which are constantly called for. What do they not do? They go out shopping—and is there anything so delightful as to shop always in strange towns? They prepare their play bills and announce their advent. The mere business of acting is only an incident in this varied life.

LINKED WITH GLORIOUS PAST

Town of Steinamanger Within Territory Once Important Part of the Old Roman Empire.

Perhaps it was not without deep sentimental reasons that former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungry chose the town of Steinamanger—to the Hungarians, Szombathely—as a place from which he hoped to receive the acclaim of his former subjects as their returned ruler, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

It has been the cherished policy of the Hapsburg rulers of Austria-Hungary to rejuvenate the old "Holy Roman Empire," the Frankish and later the German union which claimed to be the heir to the power and overlordship of Rome. The affiliations of what was Austro-Hungarian territory before the World war, with the old Roman empire, were perhaps closer through Steinamanger than through any other town. The present town is in the site of the Roman Sabria, which was the capital of one of the chief divisions of Pannonia—the name given by the Romans to the province which covered the heart of modern Austria-Hungary.

A "Sand-Bow."

The unusual optical phenomenon of a rainbow produced by the sun shining not on rain-drops, but on particles of sand suspended in the air by wind, was witnessed over a part of the Great Salt Lake by some surveying parties.

The colors were very brilliant, and there was a secondary bow visible. The main bow was fully double the width of an ordinary rainbow. Only a segment of it was seen. The sand was oolitic, consisting of calcareous spherules of fairly uniform size, ranging between the limits of No. 8 and No. 10 shot, which are polished and exhibit a pearly luster. It is pointed out that the production of the bow must have been due to reflection from the outer surfaces of the spherules, and cannot be explained on the rule of refraction and total reflection, generally applied in the explanation of the rainbow.

Selenium a Rare Element.

Selenium is a rare and little-used element described by the United States Geological survey, Department of the Interior, as having its greatest use in giving a red color to glass, such as that used in railroads for signal lights, and in coloring enameled ware red. It is also used to overcome the natural green color of ordinary glass. Selenium is peculiar in being a very poor conductor of electricity in the dark and a fairly good conductor in the light and is used in several electric devices whose utility depends on this peculiarity. It has been used in telephoning along a ray of light and in transmitting sounds and photographs from one place to another over a wire.

China to Have Large Mint.

One of the largest mints in the world, with a possible daily output of 500,000 silver dollars, is to be erected at Shanghai, China, at a cost of about $2,000,000, under the direction of an American expert. When completed, in about two years, it will absorb some 14 tons of silver a day in its task of establishing a standardized currency in China, where the present unit of value, the Mexican dollar, competes with as many varieties of coin as there are provinces. The Chinese tael, now used for reckoning, is not a coin at all, but a measured sing of silver, the value of which varies in different parts of the country—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Disappointed Hopes.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Corntossel, "our boy Josh has learned to play a regular tune on his new violin."

"That boy won't do nothin' but waste time. What does he want with a regular tune? I was educatin' him for leader of a jazz orchestra."

COUNTRY OF SWEET SCENTS

French City of Lyons Center of Region Which Supplies the World With Perfume.

Lyons, in France is the city of scents. It is the center of a region which supplies the world with perfumes, and has the only university that offers a course in perfumery-making to students. Within the last few years Lyons has developed a great laboratory system for the manufacture of artificial perfumes by the process of synthetic chemistry. Thus its technical experts convert oil of verbena into violet and lily-of-the-valley, oil of camphor into heliotrope, aniseed oil into hawthorne, oil of clove into vanilla, and oil of rosewood into bergamot. Toluene (a derivative of coal tar) they transform into jasmine and artificial rose. From xylene (likewise a coal tar product) they obtain artificial musk.

Roses are grown on an immense scale in the region about Lyons for the manufacture of perfumery. Likewise sage, thyme and sweet marjoram. That region produces 90 per cent of the total world's output of real lavender oil, representing a value of 20,000,000 francs a year. One concern has 10 square miles planted with lavender.

ALMOST GAVE AWAY SECRET

Little Girl Would Have Had Sweet Revenge If She Had Reached That Toupee.

A prominent Vigo county business man wears a toupee. Only his family and closest friends know. But recently it almost became a public fact. He was dining with his wife and some friends at a large hotel, when in walked another friend with his four-year-old daughter. The business man likes to tease children, so he immediately began on this one. He called her a little boy, and persisted in addressing her in that way.

It was evident she was not enjoying the incident, and the Vigo county man's wife came to the child's rescue. "If he doesn't stop calling you names I'd pull his hair if I were you," she advised.

The little girl started to follow that advice, and then fun did begin. The way that man ducked and begged the youngster to desist threw the crowd into paroxysms of laughter. But the people who knew about the toupee nearly went wild. They were almost sorry when he finally persuaded her to be friends and leave his head alone.—Indianapolis News.

Movies In "Maths."

Movie aids to instruction in mathematics are being utilized at Huntington school here. Geometry, a dull subject in other days, is said to have become almost a thing of joy. Textbooks are used, but only after an appetite for solids, surfaces and space has been created and stimulated by lines that move and by animated angles.

Charles H. Sampson, the instructor, says he uses two reels of 1,000 feet each. "The purpose," he says, "is not to teach geometry but rather to gain a valuable aid in the teaching of it.

"The subject is introduced on the film by a Japanese juggler. He appears with a basket filled with geometrical figures of all kinds which he juggles with skill. Thus the students are early interested in the general subject. Because too few students appreciate the value of the historical background there is next introduced a series of short life sketches."—Boston Dispatch in the New York Tribune.

To Kill Wood Borers In Lumber.

Kiln drying is fatal to some if not all the wood-boring grubs, the forest service laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture at Madison, Wis., has discovered. This fact is of considerable importance to users of ash, hickory, and many other woods which are attacked by insects. Manufacturers using ash lumber, for instance, are much annoyed by the injury worked by the red-headed ash borer. Air seasoning has no effect on the activities of these grubs, but, according to tests made by the laboratory on wood infested with them, any kiln-drying process which can be considered practical for seasoning ash of any thickness will put an end to the borers.

It Stands to Reason.

The other day a downtown principal summoned before her two youngsters who had been guilty of fighting another boy. After proving their guilt, she turned the husky-looking youngster over her knee and administered a good, old-fashioned spanking. But at the other one she hesitated. She voiced her reason to a teacher standing near: "I hate to whip him. He's so thin and sickly looking," she said.

The chunky culprit overheard her speech. "I guess criminals can be skinny as well as fat," he sobbed accusingly.

Oak in River Bed.

Just before the war, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, it was discovered in Russia that the bed of the Moksha river, for a length of 400 miles, was full of magnificent oak trees. Oak has the peculiar property of lasting for centuries when buried in water or wet sand. Oak piles from bridges constructed by the Romans have been found to be as sound as when placed, nearly 2,000 years ago.

FOUND ANGLING GOOD SPORT

Many Notables Have Been Devotees of Sport Immortalized By Sir Izaak Walton.

When President Harding prepared himself for the responsibilities of his great office by spending a few weeks fishing in Florida he added one more to the long list of notables who have been devotees of that sport. It is recorded that Noah was not only a good boatman, but a skilful angler as well. Long before the flood, and far away in the mists of time, there is a Babylonian legend that Belus, son of Nimrod, discovered fishing. The first authentic record of angling appears when the Lord asks Job: "Can't thou take out a fish with a hook?" The great Homer immortalizes the art in the "Iliad" and "Odyssey," stating that godlike men, when pinched for dinner fished with crooked hooks, and even dived for oysters. It was Plato, the Greek philosopher, who once said: "There is nothing in angling that is noble, or daring, or requiring skill."

Charlemagne, who dominated western Europe in the eighth century, advised his subjects to take up the art of angling in order to be content. "Because," said he, "I have never yet known an angler who was melancholy."

But the greatest fisherman and philosopher of modern times is undoubtedly Sir Izaak Walton. In his "Complear Angler" he indicates the progress of fishing, particularly on luring trout. He had a different colored fly for every month in the year. His books are a source of information for all, and it has been said that in them a child may wade and the tallest giant swim. "Angling," said Izaak, "is like mathematics, in that it can never be fully learned, at least not so fully but that there will always be room for experiment by some succeeding angler."—Detroit News.

THAT'S THE STORY HE TELLS

But It Certainly Was Unfortunate that the "Tonic" Should Explode When It Did.

An Indiana manufacturer recently enjoyed a restful Sunday in the quiet of his own home, a steady downpour of rain giving every assurance of his not being disturbed. Early in the evening, however, he concluded a little walk would be beneficial, and remembering his wife having mentioned she was in need of another bottle of her favorite springtime remedy, he donned a raincoat and braved the elements.

Pocketing his purchase, and homeward bound, he thought to have a look in on the evening service at the church of which he was a devoted and valued member. Standing in the rear of the church, as there was an unusually large congregation, he became much interested in the sermon, when to his horror there came a terrific bang, followed by a deluge of foam flying in every direction; all eyes were turned his way and the sermon temporarily discontinued while the erstwhile devout church member beat his hasty retreat amid the laughter of the entire congregation, having no opportunity to explain that he was carrying home a harmless bottle of "tonic" for his wife.

Gold Found In Ireland.

The recent discovery of gold in the streams of County Westmeath, Ireland, calls attention to the fact that the ancient tribesmen of that country must have been expert metallurgists. Although not noted as a gold producing country, Ireland is one of the greatest storehouses of antiquities in the world. It is a literal mine of personal ornaments, implements rings, torques and other Celtic antiquities. Kemble observed that, "with the sole exception of the museums of Scandinavia, there is scarcely one European collection which shows anything like so great a wealth of personal ornaments made of the precious metal as Ireland." It is almost certain that the gold ornaments found in such abundance were made from the precious metal found in Irish streams.

Elevated Railroad for Cuba.

Why anyone in Cuba wants an elevated railroad thrusting its steel props through the palm fronds and making the tropic night hideous with shrieking and rumbling is a puzzle to an inhabitant of a northern city, but one thing is clear from an item in a Havana newspaper. Controversy has begun long before the first riveter has put the lustiest tom-tom beaters of the island to shame. The question now under discussion is: Shall state, province and municipality share the expense of construction with the traction company? Strikes, legislative inquiries and franchise suits may follow.

He Needed Help.

"All kinds of communications are received in a newspaper office. For instance, an old subscriber asks us to tell him how to get rid of a troublesome guest who came to stay a 'few days' and has been there a month."

"We haven't time to answer a foolish question like that. Just pigeonhole it."

"No, I'm going to answer it somehow. The writer states in a postscript that if we don't give him some advice he's going to set fire to his house."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Tendency.

"Our best political life, whatever the howlers may say, is tending toward equality, beauty and holiness."—Vachel Lindsay.

MUSIC NOW DEAD IN RUSSIA

Under Bolshevism There Is Little Possibility of "Concourse of Sweet Sounds."

In Russia, when revolutionary holidays are celebrated, government autos carry concert and opera singers to the halls or other buildings where they are to be heard. But despite all efforts of the Red government, music's outlook is not rosy, and music publishing, a state monopoly, has been almost entirely suspended. Scriabin's works are practically the only ones still printed.

Most great men of Russian music are living under a cloud of despair. Glazounoff can no longer compose because his stock of music paper is exhausted and there is no more to be had. Nicolas Medtner, the composer and pianist, is the head of a small village music school near Moscow; Jules Engel, the famous critic, has a similar position at a more distant music school for peasant children.

Yet at Petrograd there are three performances of opera with Chaliapin and Neschadanowa singing in the "Barber of Seville" and "Khovantchina," though the state has not as yet been able to stage the Stravinsky and Ravel ballets it had intended to produce. But hunger paralyzes all artistic endeavor in the end, and as H. G. Wells says: "The great Russian musicians, artists, and scientists who have died as a result of existing conditions could no more live in the Russia of today than in a Kafir kraal."

KINDNESS CARRIED TOO FAR

Affection Unwisely Bestowed Has Given Birth to a Saying That Has Become Famous.

Kindness brought to the point of embarrassment or even harm leads us to say that the recipient has been "killed by kindness."

This phrase has been variously explained. One authority brings its origin back to the days before Christ.

Ancient history tells us of the death of Draco, the great Grecian legislator, and his ancient "code of laws." He died in 500 B. C. in this extraordinary manner:

Draco made an address in one of the great theaters in his native city. He was so beloved by his people and they were so eager to give him a tangible demonstration of their devotion that they took their cloaks and other garments from their own shoulders and threw them on him as gifts.

The trouble was that in their wild enthusiasm they aimed so well that poor Draco finally succumbed under the weight and when the mountain of clothing was removed from him it was found that the old gentleman had breathed his last.

According to one authority, however, "killed by kindness" is a phrase used because of the fact that certain mother apes are so fond of their young that they clutch them so tightly as to smother them to death against their bodies.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Farmeritis.

The thing of living in the country is great.

First, all you need is a place to live in; and then a horse and a cow and some pigs and chickens.

Then, all you need is some feed for horse and cow and pigs and chickens, and a strong man—

But that's next; a strong man to feed them.

Then you need to read all the farmer books and government bulletins, and learn just how things should be done.

Then you need the nerve to go and tell your man how to do everything, and the courage to watch him do it another way and ignore your instructions.

After that all you need is the gall to pretend that you did it, when a bean comes up the way it was intended.

But, with all that, it's the life; and a fellow could stand it if it wasn't for the mortgage and paying the man and buying the feed.—Richmond Times.

He dropped into a downtown candy store to make an inevitable purchase.

"What will you have?" asked the young lady behind the counter, smiling at her various chocolates, creams, caramels and others too numerous to mention even in the advertisements.

The purchaser happened to be especially fond of a certain sort of chocolate-coated cream. Pointing at a pan of these, he said: "Put emphasis on this."

The girl looked blank for a moment, then replied, gravely:

"I'm sorry, we are all out of that."—Washington Star.

Almost Horseless.

Four horses yet dwell in Woodland, the seat of Yolo county, adjoining Sacramento, Cal. These are used for delivery purposes, a milk wagon, laundry bus, express wagon and vegetable wagon being the horse-drawn equipment of the city.

The fire department and all other business are motorized.—Motor Life.

Good Logic.

A man the other day denied that John Bunyan was the author of "The Pilgrim's Progress." Being vehemently contradicted, he thus replied:

"No, I question even if he contributed to the work, for it is impossible that a bunion could contribute to any pilgrim's progress."

TRICKS OF CRIMINAL LAWYERS

Apparently the Matter of Affecting Juries Has Been Reduced to a Fine Art.

A former district attorney of Delaware county, who has tried scores of murder cases, says it is the defendant or defendant's attorney who prepares the case most carefully in advance who wins a Philadelphia correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star writes. Some of the stage tricks of murder trial stagecraft he reveals as follows:

"Grab the woman in the case as an innocent schoolgirl.

"Find if the alleged murderer has a twenty second cousin or any distant relative with a baby, and bring them into court. See that the prisoner has an opportunity to kiss the baby, even if he never saw it before, just as the jury is filing from the room.

"Fumble with bloody clothes or click the murderous pistol when an opposing attorney makes a telling point. The noise distracts the jury's attention.

"Have silk hosiery prominently displayed before the jury box by a defendant.

"Find the alleged murderer's grandmother or someone that will look like a grandmother and will cry copiously. Have her sit where the jury can see her at all times.

"Find the defendant's husband or someone who will sit as a husband. Have pledges of loyalty made so jury can see vamp eyes."

PANAMA OF SMALL ACCOUNT

Little Republic of Importance Only Because of the Canal Which Cuts Across It.

The little republic of Panama is shaped like a section of waving ribbon or of a squirming snake. It is 31 miles across at its narrowest point and not much over 50 miles wide throughout most of its 450 miles of length. It is about the size of South Carolina. The greater part of the Atlantic side of the isthmus is occupied by jungles. The population is between a third and a half of a million. Some pure Indians occupy the central mountains and a part of the Atlantic coast toward South America. There is a large negro element in the population. The remainder are of Spanish extraction and of mixed blood. The majority of the more civilized and progressive inhabitants live on the Pacific side of the island, and are concentrated noticeably in the western end, toward the Costa Rican border. Since the cession of the canal zone to the United States, Panama has had no army but has depended solely on its national police force.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

A Great Surgeon.

According to the books, Dr. Robert Abbe is 70. He was born and educated in New York. He is one of the great lights of surgery. He has been surgeon to St. Luke's hospital for more than a generation, to the New York Cancer hospital for nearly a generation. He is consulting surgeon at a number of other hospitals and he has been a lecturer on, or professor of surgery at two or three of our great medical schools. He was the pioneer in the use of radium in the United States. He completed not long ago a work on Mme. Curie and her monumental discovery. His life has been totus teres atque rotundus, a brilliant and beneficent record of devotion to science and the relief of human suffering. Amid the procession of louder names the quiet generals of the unending war against disease are too often forgotten. The more reason for some expression of public gratitude to "him who wears today the glory of his 70 years."—New York Times.

Conservative Scotland Yard is finding women of decided value on its detective force, especially in ferreting out the intricacies of certain sorts of crime, writes a London correspondent. The talent of these feminine sleuths, it is said, is due largely because of their greater success at practicing deception. And it has been found that they can keep a secret.

Many of the women detectives cover assignments at social events where it is necessary for them to wear evening gowns and jewels and to display the social graces. Women detectives were employed first in London, but now their activities have extended to the provinces.

Apprehensive.

She had received a proposal of marriage from a man she had always regarded more in the light of a brother than a lover.

"Janet," he began, "you know I have always turned to you; that I have always thought of you. May I—that is—ah, will you be my wife?"

"What a start you gave me, Henry," said Janet at last. "Do you know I thought from your manner that you were going to ask me to lend you some money."

Will Teach Air Navigation.

Air navigation in peace and war is the subject of a new extension course to be given at Columbia university. The problems to be studied will be elementary. "In this course," says the announcement, "some elements entering into the employment of aircraft both for war and also for special commercial purposes will receive major consideration. Engineering accomplishments and problems awaiting solution will be described."

SHOWED SMALLNESS OF MIND

Whistler's Petulance Under Criticism Was Cause of Sorrow to His Numerous Admirers.

There is no doubt that Whistler was a master of bitter words. His phrases have a casual ease of snapping and stinging that often startles and sometimes amazes. For his Parisian training and his extensive knowledge of the Bible—"that splendid mine of invective," as he characteristically called it—as well as from his own reckless temper, he drew a profusion of abuse, which withered, whether justifiable or not. And occasionally he was capable of great magnificence of phrase that recall his pictures.

But in general his writing is vexatious and, to say the least, undignified; the angry rattle of a gifted small boy, who ought to know better. The Wilde correspondence is perhaps the worst; but everywhere we get a tone of cheap abuse and railing. There is a careless vigor of sharp wit, but hardly the vituperative splendor of Voltaire or Swift.

And it is such a small, such a shallow, such a supersensitive way of taking criticism; no urbanity, no serenity, no large, sweet, humorous acceptance of the inevitable chattering of the world. I do not see how any admirer of Whistler's genius can read "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies" without sighing over the pity of it.—Gamaliel Bradford, in Atlantic Monthly.

ANCIENT GUILD OF ARCHERS

Institution Centuries Old Lodged in One of the Most Interesting Buildings in Bruges.

One of the most interesting places in Bruges, both for its antiquity and its connection with the royal house of Stuart, is the Guild of Archers of St. Sebastian. The date of the foundation of the guild is unknown, as all the records were destroyed in the great fire of the belfry of Bruges in 1280. However, there is every reason to believe it must have existed before 1096, as it had already emblazoned in its arms the Cross of Jerusalem, or the Holy Land, which was awarded to all the medieval guilds that took part in the first crusade. The guild now has in its possession archives dating from 1805. The present building was given by Cornelius De Bloci in 1573, when a chapel with a remarkably fine ceiling was built, and is still to be seen.

Charles II, king of England, together with his brother, the duke of Gloucester, became members during their two years of exile. Charles II was the first to inaugurate the Gold Book of the Archers, and put his signature to his gift in which he promised 1,000 golden crowns. The duke of Gloucester gave 200 golden crowns to the guild and also a silver arrow.

Senses Keyed to Danger.

Since it is more important to be warned of danger than guided to delights our senses are made more sensitive to pain than pleasure, writes Edwin E. Slosson in the New York Independent. We cannot detect by the smell one two-millionth of a milligram of oil of roses or musk, but we can detect one two billionth of a milligram of mercaptan, which is the vilest smelling compound that man has so far invented. If you do not know how much a milligram is, consider a drop picked up by the point of a needle and imagine that divided into 2 billion parts. Also try to estimate the weight of the odorous particles that guide a dog to the fox or warn a deer of the presence of man. The unaided nostril can rival the spectroscope in the detection and analysis of unweighable amounts of matter.

Readers will be interested to know that authors do not always know just what precisely was their meaning when they wrote certain lines or passages. Maeterlinck always disclaimed any allegorical message in his "Blue Bird," for instance, and insists that he wrote the play as a fairy tale, and nothing more. When Hawthorne was asked for an interpretation of some of the legends in "Mosses from an Old Manse," he wrote: "Upon my honor, I am not quite sure that I comprehend my own meaning in some of those blasted allegories, but I remember that I always had a meaning, or at least thought I had."

Sexton's Signs Startle.

Birth, marriage and death are generally considered the three high points in the average person's career. The church has vital connection with all three, but probably in few cities are the three so vividly associated as they are in New York.

The sexton's sign on New York churches always impresses tourists. It generally is as conspicuous as the placard giving the name and address of the pastor and tells how funerals and burials may be arranged.

Visitors from the West, where churches do not advertise the sexton, read the sign with a rather creepy feeling.

Real Beauty Expert!

Two negro girls were discussing the merits of a certain beauty specialist.

"Am she the goods?" asked one. "Can she make yo' beautiful?"

"Lissen, Pansy," came the answer; "'at woman am so proficient she can make a human scarecrow look like the Venus de Milo standin' knee deep in a lily pond."

Method In Seeming Madness.

Seven-year-old Jimmie came to school very early in March wearing a straw hat. It was so noticeable that the children teased him, but still he wore it. The principal herself was amused. "I guess you're helping the season rush along," she laughed to him.

"No, ma'am," he returned solemnly. "I'm helping myself. A straw hat is lighter and easier to tip to the teachers than a wool one."

Friendly Advice.

"He is my abject slave."

"Are you going to marry him?"

"Yes."

"Don't expect him to be a husband on that basis."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

When a Man Marries

At a recent national conference of savings bank officials it was said that married men save more than single men—and more savings accounts are opened in June than any other month.

So June, the month of brides—and sweet girl graduates, and eager boys with the light of the world's battles in their eyes—is also the month of savings accounts.

But why limit this advantage to married folks? Everyone needs a savings account and now is the best time to start one—and here is a good place—where good service and security of funds make our interest rate doubly attractive.

GO NO FARTHER

The Evidence Is at Your Door.

Charleroi proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt: Mrs. Geo. Arnold, 821 McKean Ave., Charleroi, says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble I had was a dull, heavy aches across my back. I had a run down, tired-out feeling that made me feel of no account. Every time I bent over it almost took my breath away to straighten up again, and then I would become dizzy and black specks would appear before my eyes. My kidneys acted irregularly which caused me a lot of annoyance, too. I was told to try Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a supply and after taking a few doses my back felt strong again. I continued the use of Doan's until I was cured of my trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arnold had. Foster-Milburn Co. Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW PACKET LINE MAY BE INSTALLED

According to word from Morgantown, efforts are being made to receive the packet trade between Pittsburg and Fairmont on the Monongahela river. It is said that a Boston concern will finance a Pittsburg corporation, which intends to operate two boats on the Monongahela. This company, according to report, purchased two commodious yachts from the government, which are now at New Orleans undergoing repairs and alterations in order to fit them for inland water service. These boats are said to have commodious quarters for passengers, each being capable of accommodating about 75 persons with state rooms. If the plan goes through boats will leave Fairmont and Pittsburg each day, making about three round trips per week.

NEW JUSTICE FOR BENTLEYVILLE BORO

Governor William C. Sproul on Wednesday appointed W. A. Hampton justice of the peace for Bentleyville.

MILTON WILL DRIVE AT UNIONTOWN TRACK

Tommy Milton, international speed king, winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile automobile race on May 30, is epected to enter the Uniontown Universal Trophy Race on June 18. Milton is a contender for the Universal Trophy and is the only driver who has two legs on this coveted prize. The Uniontown race is also a championship point event.

Milton is a wonderful favorite at Uniontown. His wonderful success in Uniontown, his uncanny knowledge of the Uniontown track and his skill as a driver has won for him a following numbering thousands. Rosco Sarles, who won second place at Indianapolis, will be there with the entire Duesenberg team. The Duesenberg team is composed of Sarles, Jimmy Murphy, captain, Eddie Pullen and Eddie Miller. Sarles is another Uniontown favorite, as is Murphy.

With Milton and Ralph Mulford in Frontenacs, pitted against the Duesenberg team, a wonderful race is already assured. Milton is the former Duesenberg premier pilot, having driven the Duesenberg last season.

WILL MAKE REPAIRS AT LOCK NO. FOUR

Wednesday evening the United States steamer Swan, Capt. W. H. Shannon, with the repair boat Monongahela and a fleet of other craft arrived at Lock No. 4, where extensive repairs will be made to both locks during the next few months. The chamber of the inner lock will first receive attention and it will be pumped out in order to permit needed repairs to wickets, valves, mitre sills and gates. As soon as the inner lock is completed the outer chamber will be pumped out and similar repairs made. The work will be in charge of W. H. Beachley, superintendent of all repairs and construction from Lock No. 1 to 15 inclusive.

MORGANZA ADDS LARGE ACREAGE TO HOLDINGS

The Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza has added 90 acres to its already large holdings of real estate at that point, the newest purchase being just completed, which gives the state a total of 700 acres in connection with the school. The additional purchase is on the south side of Chartiers creek, in North Strabane township. A new concrete bridge to cost about $20,000 is now in process of construction; to convert the new purchase with the other acreage on the north side of the creek.

The Monessen school board, at a special meeting held Tuesday afternoon, decided on a levy of 22 mills for taxable purposes to make up the budget of expense for the coming school year. In addition to this levy on all taxable real estate, a poll tax of $3.00 per capita on all persons, male and female, 21 years or over, residing in the borough limits. The board estimates the receipts of the school district will be approximately $333,531.72, all of which money will be required to bear the expenses of the schools during the next term. Of this sum it will require over $200,000 to pay the teachers' salaries.

GARMENT WORKERS END A LONG STRIKE

Thirty thousand garment workers on strike in New York since December, were returning to work Thursday. A verbal agreement reached at a meeting of representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Clothing Manufacturer' Association is to be drawn up and signed. The agreement involves a 35 per cent wage reduction for all workers except cutters, whose wages will be determined by their class of work.

EAST BETHLEHEM TEACHERS ELECTED

The school directors of East Bethlehem township met Tuesday evening and elected eight teachers for the grades and one high school teacher, as follows: High school teacher, Dr. Frank Fish of Millsboro; grade teachers, Gertrude Bigler, Emma Flickman, Nina Crawford, Marion Cullen, Mrs. Frank King, Ida Regester, J. Grant McCarty and Mrs. Iva McCarty. There is still one vacancy in the grades.

EAGLES CONVENTION TO MEET IN MONONGAHELA

The Pennsylvania State Aerie, F. O. Monongahela was chosen as the convention city for 1922 over Latrobe, which was a strong contender for the honor.

SERVICES AT MAPLE CREEK BAPTIST CHURCH

Services will be held at the Maple Creek Baptist church, on Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5, by S. A. Cleavenger, Baptist minister. The services on Saturday will be held at 2 o'clock p. m. standard time, and on Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. standard time.

Commencement exercises for the Monessen High school were held Thursday evening, at which time a class numbering 54, thirty girls and twenty-four boys, were graduated. The exercises incidental to the graduation were held in the High school auditorium.

The Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic will hold a public meeting in the Star theatre, Monessen, Sunday afternoon. Col. Joe Thompson and Capt. J. E. Boyle of Beaver, will be the principal speakers.

The Novelty Players of Charleroi furnished music for The Skulls' dance at Eldora park last evening. The Skulls is a social organization of Monongahela, and about sixty couples were in attendance at the outing held last evening.

Queer "Religion" Survives.

Joanna Southcott, the Devonshire servant girl, who professed to be a prophetess and who issued 6,400 sealed papers to her followers, at prices ranging from 12 shillings to a sovereign, each "seal" guaranteed to secure salvation, has still her followers in London. Some of these strange documents still survive, and are much treasured by their words: "The seal of the Lord—the Elect Precious Man's Redemption—To inherit the Tree of Life—To be made heirs of God and joint heirs of Jesus Christ."

Deadly Duel Between Eagles.

Two eagles have had a fight to the death at Invergarry, Inverness-shire, wires a London Daily Chronicle correspondent. Within a few yards of a road a boy, the son of a herd keeper, saw two golden eagles engaged in a fierce combat. He watched the struggle, and saw one of the birds fall on its back dead in a ditch. Its adversary, with beak fast in the other's throat, then stood triumphantly on the victim's breast.

House Built of Compressed Straw.

A house with walls made of compressed straw was erected in the Faubourg de la Chaussee at Montargis, France. The framework of the building and the sides are filled with blocks of tightly compressed straw, which are claimed to be as hard as concrete and just as uninflammable. Owing to the lightness of the materials only small foundations are needed and a house of this kind can be built in a month.

Lilac Should Be Everywhere.

No country lane or road today is complete in the northern states unless it shows touches of lilac. A few hedges occur here and there, but while otherwise adaptable, the lilac does not admit easily of such training. Longfellow's "Craigie House" is still surrounded by lilacs planted years ago, and the purple bloom makes it a rare retreat.

At the beginning of the second semester of school, a boy entered the first grade wearing curls. That noon at table my young hopeful in a tone registering disgust said: "That new boy is sure some sissy." Upon my asking him how he knew, he replied: "I know because his hair says so."—Chicago Tribune.

Coal Lost in Waste.

Under ordinary conditions of mining and firing, out of every 2,000 pounds of steam coal in place in the mine, only about 75 pounds are converted into mechanical energy—a most surprising fact. The other 1,924 pounds are either unavailable or are absorbed by the eight losses.

Eraser Hint.

When the eraser becomes well worn it is apt to smear the paper when it is used to erase a letter. To avoid this, simply rub a little chalk on the edge of the eraser and no smear will occur; and the erasure of the letter will be done much more quickly as well as more neatly.

What Average Man Lacks.

The ignorance of the place we live in is inexcusable; we are taught to read maps, and have a knowledge of the positions and contours of the lands of this globe; but not the plans of our cities and places we live in—Hilsey Ricardo.

CATERS TO PATRONS OF BAND CONCERTS

In order that the people of Donora may properly enjoy the band concerts which are given each Friday evening in Doner park of that town, by the American Steel and Wire band, the chief of police of the big steel town has directed that certain streets adjacent to the park be closed while the concert is in progress.

Heretofore a great deal of confusion has been caused by automobiles passing to and fro, much to the annoyance of patrons, and it is for the purpose of doing away with this noise that the police have established street regulations. Automobiles may be parked along the curb of the streets adjacent to the park during the concert, but they must remain there until the program is finished. In this way it is expected the people who come to enjoy the music will not be disturbed.

BRITAIN FREE FROM WOLVES

Country More Fortunate in That Respect Than Are Other Lands in Europe.

We in the British Isles appear to have got rid of the wolf plague. In England, in the early Fifteenth century, the beast ceased to be a danger that had to be reckoned with. It remained longer in Scotland, where the very last wolf ever heard of in the roaming state is said to have been slain by Sir Ewen Cameron of Lochiel during the reign of Charles II—an incident that appears to have been looked upon as distinctly worthy of notice.

The complete and final extermination of the bane is no doubt owing to the fact that, as lupus was steadily being hunted down in the land our insular position precluded all possibility of fresh immigration. In France the case was different. There was nothing to prevent the migrating wolf from reaching the country from the wildernesses of Central Europe—even from Russia and still more distant Siberia, the classic home of the race.

Many are the legends, to some extent based on fact, of vast armies of wolves traveling—even as the invading Goths and Vandals—from their hungry deserts to the richer lands of the West, to be stopped only by the Atlantic. At any rate, to this day the black wolf crosses the Pyrenees, and the brown wolf the Alps, to reinforce fraternally the ranks of the much-harried gray wolf of France. And the day seems still far distant when the curse will be finally extinguished.—Egerton Castle in the Youth's Companion.

"VERDICT BY JUDGE LYNCH"

Just Where That Famous Jurist First Held Court Has Long Been Matter of Dispute.

"Lynch law" is purely an Americanism. Its origin is somewhat in doubt. No such law is on the statute books, and the application of the expression today refers to outlaw or mob law which circumvents the written law, or inflicts a swift punishment before the legal authorities have had a chance to take action.

Figuratively speaking, such an act is called "a verdict by Judge Lynch." According to one authority, one Charles Lynch, a patriot of Virginia, conspired with Robert Adams and Thomas Callaway, to deal out relentlessly and unhesitatingly, punishment to all law breakers and Tories during the days of our Revolution.

However, this origin is disputed. Some say that there was a small body of water known as "Lynch creek" in North Carolina during the same period in our history, and that on its shores a court-martial was held over the lifeless body of a Tory who had been hanged to prevent his rescue. Naturally, the verdict was death by hanging, and the judge did not have to bother about the execution of the sentence.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Efficient Spending.

The measure of real necessity is surprisingly small. When one finds the medium ground between prodigality and stinginess he will realize that he can live there, even though his income may be moderate. Greater moderation in many things would leave us a healthier and happier race, to say nothing of what it would do for our bank accounts. Certainly, before buying a thing one should honestly ask himself whether he needs it. He should, likewise, give himself an honest answer.

The second principle of efficient spending is that when one has honestly decided that he needs a thing he should buy the best he can get. If one buys at all, it pays to search the market for an article of high quality. Moreover, he is very apt not to find an article of high grade unless he does search the market rather carefully.

It is time to get over the idea that we have to be comfortable because we were brought up that way, while others were predestined to misery and are so hardened to their condition that we needn't bother. One effect of travel—if the traveler is impressionable, and some travelers are not—is to show us that no country has a monopoly of certain homely virtues that take root and flourish in the ideal soil, as in the richest soil. Nor is any other country particularly interested in our introspective studies of how good we are and our growing imagination of our greatness. Beastfulness is a posture as unlovely for the millions as it is for one. Let us give credit to others for possessing some of the qualities we admire so much in ourselves.—Exchange.

Sartorial Eclipse.

"You say this swell dresser was humiliated when forced to appear in court."

"Yes."

"That seems to indicate that he has a conscience."

"Not at all. After having spent years building up a local reputation as a 'snappy dresser,' he had to appear in a suit that needed pressing."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

But It's the Fashion.

Wifey—Aren't you positively ashamed that your wife and daughter are all out at the elbows?

Hub—Nope. But I'm ashamed that they are all out at the knees.—American Legion Weekly.

SATISFIED WITH THE TEST

After Somewhat Belated Proof of the Purity of the Liquor, Brothers Slept in Peace.

"Testing" corn liquor is one of the most frequent preliminaries to conviviality these days. It is rumored, alleged indicated and otherwise loosed abroad. Lightnin' that burns with a white flame is supposed to be dangerous, to contain wood alcohol, and to otherwise be undesirable; shine that burns blue is supposed to be the honest effort of a master-maker of spirits. Sometimes, however, zeal for drink overcomes caution, even of this uncertain sort, with the result that the following occurred a few nights ago.

Two young brothers in mild iniquity secured themselves a pint. They, being fairly law-abiding in other respects, went to their room to drink it. They drank it, at least, most of it, and became somewhat affected by its presence with them. They undressed, turned out the light and retired. After about 20 minutes, one aroused himself and called to the other.

"Say, wake up, we didn't test that liquor!"

"Well, must do it," was the drowsy reply, "won't do drink it 'thout testin' it."

They arose, turned on the light, found the drop or two of liquor left in the flask, poured it on a hand-mirror, touched a match to it with due solemnity and care, saw the blue flame and returned to their beds absolutely satisfied.—Atlanta Constitution.

HE GOT THE "BUG" LETTER"

Discovery That Made the Victim Madder Than Before He Sent in Original "Kick."

There is probably no easier way to get a laugh out of an average American audience than to mention an Englishman's sense of humor, and to read what an American may have to say about the British humor may be exasperating to an Englishman, but the reverse is not always true. An Englishman, J. C. Squire, for instance, may write about American jokes and not be the least bit irritating. In his "Life and Letters" Mr. Squire's chapter, "Goaks and Humour," contains several fine American jokes, and among them is one that concerns a traveler on a sleeping car who had written a complaint to headquarters about the presence of vermin in his berth.

"He received back from the administrative head a letter of immense effusiveness. Never before had such a complaint been lodged against this scrupulously careful line, and the management would have suffered any loss rather than cause annoyance to so distinguished a citizen as, etc., etc. He was very delighted with this abject apology. But as he was throwing away the envelope there fell out a slip of paper which had, apparently, been inclosed by mistake. On it was a memorandum: 'Send this guy the bug letter.'"

Relic of Glacial Age.

Devil's Pulpit, located about two miles east of Batavia, N. Y., is a relic of the glacial age. It is a huge mass of rock shaped like an hour glass, and is one of the most peculiar and striking natural formations in the whole state. The base is fully 30 feet across. It slopes upward to a narrow rock, corresponding to the neck through which the sands of an hour glass sift, and then broadens out to form what looks like the upper chamber of the glass. It is composed of limestone and stands 20 feet in height. The nearest bedrock like it is five miles away to the north, and geologists believe this means that the rock was torn loose from its original mother vein and dragged those five miles by the big glacier that swept down from the polar regions ages ago. Natural erosion did the carving that gives it the hour-glass contour.

Boiling eggs, developing photographs or any other operation that requires short but accurate account of time, may be allowed to proceed without attention through the use of a novel clock, described in Popular Mechanics. The four-inch dial is at the top, and in the lower part of the case is a vertical scale, reading up to 90 minutes in one-minute divisions, and carrying a small slide that is set by hand. At the end of the period set, a four-inch gong on the back rings until it is shut off. Though a valuable addition to the home kitchen, the new time-keeping clock is intended especially as a labor-saving accessory for hotel and restaurant kitchens, photo galleries, laboratories and other places where the measurement of minutes is needed.

Snapping Movie Picture.

Usually 150,000 to 200,000 feet are run through the cameras to get a six reel, or 6,000-foot motion picture. The director stations three, four or five cameras to take the same scene. He has one camera close beside the struggling villain and hero, another winding from an elevation, still another at this angle, one more at that angle. When all of these negatives are developed, parts of each enter into the composition of the completed reel.

Impossible.

"These short skirts—"

"Yes?"

"I should think a girl's ankles would get cold."

"How can her ankles get cold when she has a fur neckpiece?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.
